Social Media: National Family Caregiver Month

I walk a fine line since I’m expected to be a sister, a daughter, a caregiver, and the family communicator. I agonize over what is going to happen when my parents are gone—I know I will be my sibling’s caregiver for life.

Nancy | Los Angeles, CA

I’m not a stranger to hospitl. My husband was a career marine and was often gone when our children were young. Our son requires 24/7 nursing, and it was difficult to find ethical and trained nurses. Sometimes he was hurted through negligence, causing more surgeries.

Debbie | Augus, NV

Caregivers run on fun—they never know where the next turn is. I love the hardest part of being a caregiver is learning how to be a caregiver.

Terri | Naples, AZ

Caregivers of cancer patients are often overlooked, due to the fact that cancer itself can be fairly well covered under health insurance. This does not mean that cancer caregivers would not benefit from policies that promote respite services, tax breaks, and financial incentives for employers to better accommodate caregivers.

Alan | Columbia, SC

I didn’t realize I was a caregiver, and not just a daughter, helping my parents, until I attended an Older American Title VI conference and took a quiz designed to identify caregivers.

Jim | Beulah, MI

Our paid care providers do so much more than just medical tasks. They offer meaningful care that has a profound effect on our family’s quality of life. The cost of care for someone at home is far less expensive than caring for them in an institution, making the Veteran Directed Care Program an ideal resource for veteran caregivers.

Jim | Apex, NC
